Dear (Your awesome boss's name),

I would like to take advantage of an upcoming learning and development opportunity to attend a PowerProv "PowerPlay" improv class.

You may already know this, but improv is seriously good for business. In fact, several leading business journals have written about it:

- Forbes: Can Improv Improve Marketing?
- CNN: Using Improv to Teach Business Skills is No Joke
- Fast Company: Improv Helps Corporate Team Building & Fuels Business Innovation
- Inc.: Improv Boosts Collaboration and Creativity
- Harvard Business Review: Change the Way Your Team Works

I have reviewed the outcomes and believe this class would positively impact my performance and well-being, and therefore, benefit our organisation.

Some of the skills this class teaches:

- Active Listening - responding to what's being said, and body language
- Taking initiative as a communicator and validating input from others
- Being more aware of how specific word choice can affect an agenda
- Using the "Yes, and..." technique to contribute and build on other's ideas
- Using Divergent & Convergent Thinking for creativity and innovation
- Making and committing to decisions and being less afraid of mistakes
- Being less judgmental and avoiding unhealthy competition
- Building confidence in sales, public speaking, and presenting

More information about PowerProv, this class, and their Corporate Training programs can be found at:

I am confident that attending this program will benefit both myself and the business and I genuinely appreciate you taking the time to read this proposal.

Best regards,

(Your Name)
